

How to start/ end “Guided Access”

This is a video on how to start guided access. Guided access should be on all the time. If the device runs out of battery or is shut down completely then guided access will need to be put back on.

To start guided access, triple click on the home button. You will then be asked to enter the passcode. After that, a message will appear saying “Guided access is now started”. You can also see that now the menu bar is all grey. That means, even if I click on it, nothing works.

If you want to go out of guided access, triple click on the home button again. You will have to put in your passcode. 1 5 9 7 5 3. Now you have two choice, you can go out of guided access, if you click “end”, or go back into guided access if you click “resume”. You can also tweak some of the settings about “sleep” screen and if you want the screen to rotate ect.

To go out of guided access, click on “end” and a message will appear saying “guided access ended”. You can also see, that the menu bar is not grey anymore. That means, guided access is now off and you have access in all the options on the menu bar.
